This summer, the InsSciDE project organizes the first edition of our flagship training program the Warsaw Science Diplomacy School \(WSDS 2020: Virtual\)!

Trainees will join experts from diverse disciplines in transforming lessons learned from historical case studies of science diplomacy into strategies and skills applicable to the global challenges of today.

Suitable for science diplomacy novices as well as established practitioners, activities will focus on developing policies in a global context, creating strategies for directing and facilitating multilateral action, and will undertake critical questions related to the theme of 'Risk, Safety and Security within Science Diplomacy'.

Embracing an interdisciplinary spirit, our competitive process will select applicants from natural and social sciences, engineering, diplomacy, government and business. We also offer the opportunity for institutions or organizations to nominate candidates who may be a particularly good fit for the WSDS.

The WSDS is organized by InsSciDE – Inventing a shared Science Diplomacy for Europe – and the European Academy of Diplomacy.
